A DICTIONARY OF THE CHOCTAW LANGUAGE

By Cyrus Byington

EDITED BY

John R. Swanton and Henry S. Halbert

INTRODUCTION

By John R. Swanton

This dictionary represents a portion of the results of nearly fifty years of missionary service among the Choctaw Indians on the part of its compiler, Rev. Cyrus Byington. Mr. Byington was also the author of translations into Choctaw of several books of both the Old and the New Testament, Choctaw almanacs, a Choctaw definer, a grammar of the Choctaw language, and some minor writings. His grammar, edited by Dr. D. G. Brinton, was published in Philadelphia in 1871, in the Proceedings of the American Philosophical Society (vol. 11, pp. 317–367). In the introduction to this grammar Dr. Brinton gives the following account of the author's life:

"This eminent scholar and missionary, whose name is inseparably connected with the later history of the Choctaw nation, was born at Stockbridge, Berkshire County, Mass., March 11, 1793. He was one of nine children, and his parents were in humble circumstances, but industrious and respected. His father was at one time a tanner, and subsequently a small farmer. Necessarily, therefore, his early education was limited.

When a well-grown lad he was taken into the family of Mr. Joseph Woodbridge, of his native town, from whom he received some instruction in Latin and Greek, and with whom he afterward read law. In 1814 he was admitted to the bar, and practiced a few years with success in Stockbridge and Sheffield, Mass.

His father though a moral was not a religious man, and it seems to have been only after he reached manhood that Mr. Byington became, as he expressed it, "a subject of divine grace." He then resolved to forsake the bar and devote himself to missionary life. With this object in view he entered the theological school at Andover, Mass., where he studied Hebrew and theology, and was licensed to preach, September, 1819. At this time he hoped to go to the Armenians in Turkey. But Providence had prepared for him another and an even more laborious field.

For about a year he preached in various churches in Massachusetts, awaiting some opportunity for missionary labor. Toward the close of the summer of 1819, a company of 20 or 25 persons left Hampshire County, Mass., under the direction of the American Board of Missions, to go by land to the Choctaw nation, then resident in Mississippi. They passed through Stockbridge, in September, and were provided with a letter from the Board, asking Mr. Byington to take charge of them, and pilot them to their destination. He was ready at a few hours' notice.

The company journeyed by land to Pittsburgh, where they procured flatboats, and floated down the Ohio and Mississippi to a point near the mouth of the Yalobusha River, whence a land journey of 200 miles brought them to their destination. . . .

Throughout his missionary life Mr. Byington appreciated the value which a knowledge of the language and traditions of the Choctaws would have to scholars. From his arrival among them, therefore, he devoted assiduous labor to their language with a view to comprehend its extremely difficult construction, and to render it available for the missionary and philological student. The first draft of his Grammar was completed in 1834. It was written and rewritten, until at the time of his death, which occurred at Belprè, Ohio, December 31st, 1868, he was at work upon the seventh revisal.

As left by Mr. Byington, the Choctaw dictionary consisted of five paper-bound folio volumes, having entries on both sides of the leaves; the whole work was modeled after the English or classical dictionary of the author's time. Separate entries were therefore made of the same word when used as noun, adjective, verb, etc., each followed by a letter indicating the proper part of speech. The phonetic system was constructed for the greater part by employing the English letter representing most closely the Indian sound. Only two innovations were introduced—the use of v (a true v sound not being present in the Choctaw language) for the obscure a, and of lines under the vowels to indicate nasalization. For these devices I have substituted the more commonly used ą and ^{n}. I have also changed the aspirated l (hl) into ł. The sh and ch have been allowed to stand, although it is now customary to represent these by c and tc, respectively. Furthermore, in many instances I have combined in one word syllables separated by Mr. Byington and later missionaries—as, for instance, the syllables indicating pronominal relations, the reflexive, the negative, and some of the tense signs—for it is evident that in these cases the syllables all constitute one complex. Undoubtedly absolute accuracy has not been attained in this particular, but the course followed is certainly a move in the right direction. With the exceptions just mentioned the material is reproduced substantially as recorded by the author. It would be fair neither to Mr. Byington nor to the editors, however, to present the dictionary as a finished work. In the quotation given above Doctor Brinton speaks of the great care which the missionary bestowed on the manuscript of his grammar when preparing it for the press; unfortunately he had opportunity to make only a beginning in the editing of his dictionary. Many entries consisted merely of brief notes to be elaborated later or of references to cases not observed elsewhere and to be explained by further investigations. But the plan which Mr. Byington had set before himself for his dictionary is one not now of much value to students of American languages, and to carry it to completion along those lines would involve an enormous amount of unprofitable labor. Therefore the work is presented almost as he left it, as a source of valuable linguistic, and also ethnologic, information faithfully recorded by one of the most capable of the early missionaries at a time when many things were to be learned which are now doubtless entirely forgotten. In order to increase the utility of the dictionary an English-Choctaw index has been compiled and appended, which will make it possible to find where information is to be had regarding the Choctaw equivalent of each English word or phrase given. This part is in no sense a dictionary, nor is it to be regarded as such.

As might naturally have been expected, Mr. Byington's inspiring motive was his desire to translate the Biblical writings into Choctaw and to further the conversion of the Choctaw tribe to the Christian religion. The present work contains therefore numerous references to early translations of the Biblical writings undertaken by him. From the changes incorporated into later editions it is evident that the exact shade of meaning was not always determined in those first efforts, but, in any event, perhaps it could only have been approximated, and no attempt has been made to alter the references except in a few cases where palpable errors had been made. Nevertheless, these citations have been verified as far as possible and a few question marks inserted where no words resembling the ones under consideration could be found. In other instances it will be noticed that Mr. Byington has ignored certain affixes of common occurrence which alter the exact form as it appears in the text.

Anciently there were several Choctaw dialects, but only one of these, that of the Sixtowns Indians living in the southern part of the old Choctaw country, differed to any considerable degree from the standard, or Longtown, dialect spoken in the western part of the Nation. Moreover, this difference seems to have been confined mainly to certain words, involving but very slightly the language as a whole. A number of these Sixtowns words will be found interspersed throughout the present work.

It has been my good fortune to have enlisted as coeditor Mr. Henry S. Halbert, of the Department of Archives and History, Montgomery, Ala., who has spent many years of his life among the Choctaw Indians, is familiar with their language, and is an enthusiastic student of everything relating to the history and present culture of the tribe. While he has noted and corrected many errors, he has deemed it best to let certain doubtful words and sentences stand as in the original manuscript, with the idea that they may represent certain dialectic or archaic variations which have escaped him.

Acknowledgment is here made of the courtesy of Mrs. Eliza Innes, of Lockesburg, Ark., daughter of the Rev. Cyrus Byington, and of that of her son, Mr. E. S. Byington, of Broken Bow, Okla., in placing at the disposal of the Bureau the photograph from which the accompanying portrait of the author was reproduced; also his notebooks for the years 1844–46 and 1861.

Abbreviations.—While a great many abbreviations have been used, most of these will be readily understood. C. B. or B. indicates the compiler, Cyrus Byington; J. R. S. and H. S. H., the editors, John R. Swanton, and Henry S. Halbert, respectively. Of the other abbreviations the principal are the following: a., adjective; adv., adverb; caus., causative; con., connective; dem., demonstrative; dim. or dimin., diminutive; fem. or f., feminine; freq., frequentative; imp., imperative; mas. or m., masculine; n., noun; nas. form or n. f., nasal form; per., personal; pl. or plu., plural; pro., pronoun, also prolonged; ref., reflexive; sing. or s., singular; v. a. i., active intransitive verb; v. i., intransitive verb; v. n., neutef verb; v. t., transitive verb. Besides these will be found the names and initials of various Choctaw Indians who are given as authorities for certain forms, and abbreviations of the names of other works in the Choctaw language.

The description of Choctaw phonetics which follows is taken from the first page of the manuscript dictionary, only such changes having been made as were necessitated by the innovations already referred to.

Phonetic Key

ALPHABET

Letters	Sounded
A a	as a in father.
Ą ą	as u in tub, and a in above, around.
B b	as in English.
Ch ch	as in church.
E e	as e in they, and short e as in met.
F f	as in English.
H h	as in English.
I i	as i in marine and short as i in pin.
K k	as in English.
L l	as in English.
Ł ł	as an aspirated l.
M m	as in English.
N n	as in English.
O o	as o in note, go.
P p	as in English.
S s	as in sir; never as s in his.
Sh sh	as in shall.
T t	as in English.
U u	as oo in wool, u in full.
W w	as in war, we.
Y y	as in you.

DIPHTHONGS

Ai ai	as i in pine.
Au au	as ow in now, how.

NASALIZED VOWELS

A^n a^n I^n i^n O^n o^n U^n u^n	These are pure nasals, and retain the vowel sounds, except before the letter k, in which case they are like the long ang, ing, ong, ung. The usual sound is softer than ang, and like that of the French vowel followed by n in the same syllable.

CONSONANTS AND VOWELS

Let it be remembered that each consonant has but one sound and that the sounds ascribed to the vowels are such as they have, respectively, in accented syllables; in unaccented syllables they have the sound of short vowels. English readers should remember not to give the English sound to the vowels, except as noted in the alphabet.

a^n, i^n, o^n, and u^n, or some of them, are used as separate words or final syllables. They are used also before the consonants and semivowels b, f, h, k, m, n, s, sh, w, and y. Before the consonant p, sometimes before b and the vowels, for the sake of euphony the letter m is added, or the nasal sound becomes m of necessity from the position of the organs of speech at that time, as am, im, om, um.

Before ch, l, t, and t the letter n is added, as an, in, on, un, and before the vowels in many words the letter n is added to the nasal. a^n is never used; a^n is used in its place. The vowel e is never used as a nasal, i^n being used in its place.

In making these remarks general rules are stated. It is not to be supposed that each and all of the nasals are thus used. There are exceptions, which the student must be ready to notice. An unwritten language has its anomalies and irregularities.

CHOCTAW—ENGLISH VOCABULARY

a, the first letter of the alphabet, sounded as a in father.

a (when followed by a verb beginning with a consonant), adv. or locative particle or prefix, means there, in that place, at that time, at, from, on, in, of, by; when the verb begins with a vowel, a becomes ai; achumpa, to bury at; aminti, to come from; aiilli, to die at or in. a and ai are used where in English place is used; nusi, to sleep; anusi, a sleeping place; aiimpa, an eating place, a plate, dining room, table; chik-aiamiho, repeated in Matt. 5: 35; of, in chianukshopa, he is afraid of you; chi-atoba, he is begotten of you: by, in aiok-cha^{n}ya, to live by, Matt. 4: 4: used as a sign of the future tense; chi chia, cf. John 1: 49; achi^{n}, ahe, ahinla; atuk, ashke, as satoshbihashke; siakmạt, hymn 66, v. 2: prefixed to a verb often changes the verb to a noun, as aminti, a source; literally, to come from; isht ahạchia, see John 15: 3; aiạtta, a residence; lit., to stay at. a and ai are much used as prefixes in compounding words: prefixed to some cardinals the latter become ordinals, as tuklo, two; atukla, second; atuchina, third; and before a vowel ạ becomes ai, as ushta, four; aiushta, fourth: an intensive before consonants; aputta, abillia, ạfehna: used before tuk and tok and their compounds a partakes of the sense of a definite article or of a relative pronoun. Sabạnnahatuk, that which I wanted; "This is used when the person has some doubt as to obtaining the thing sought, while sabạnnạshke indicates a certainty in the expectation."—J. Hudson.

a, ah, v. a. i., to say, to tell, to call; a-li, I say; alikamo, I did say, and you know it; imalikashkint, I told him so before, or that is what I told him, and you heard it (kashkint implies previous knowledge on the part of the hearer as well as on that of the speaker); alahe keyu, I should not call, Acts, 10 : 28.

a^{n} [cf. ạt]. 1. A determinative particle in the objective case after nouns and meaning the; as, wak a^{n} pisali, I see the cow. Sometimes this article is pronounced ha^{n} and ya^{n} [cf. hạt and yạt] for euphony. It is also a sign of, or with, the future tense, and is used as a particle of specification or emphasis after verbs in present, future, and past tenses; i^{n}nukha^{n}klotoka^{n}, Luke 10: 37; katimichi-lahe a^{n}, future tense, Luke 18: 41; hopo-nayolahe a^{n}, Luke 18: 41. See Matt. 15: 31 for instances in the past tense; [also] ona^{n}shahatok, Matt. 28: 2. Chelusalem a^{n}, Jerusalem it, Matt. 2: 1. 2. A relative pronoun in the objective case after verbs and adjectives and equivalent to the English relatives the which, the one which, that which, etc. It may also be translated by the personal pronouns him, her, it, them, as Lakab a^{n}, Rachab her, Matt. 1: 5. It is sometimes written ha^{n} or ya^{n}; cf. hạt and yạt. The aspirated forms are ah, hah, and yah.

a^{n}, a dative pronoun first per. sing., my; to or for me; as, a^{n}holisso, my book. Written also am and an; as amisuba, my horse, lit., horse to or for me; a^{n}holi-topa, Matt. 3: 17. When it stands before a verb, or a word where a verb is understood, it is generally translated by a preposition; as, for me, to me, of me, from me; a^{n}holissochi, write for me, or to me; a^{n}pota, lend me; a^{n}chumpa, buy of me, or buy for me; written also ạm, as ạmithạna, to learn of me. In the negative forms this pronoun is written sa^{n} and sạm; as iksa^{n}chumpo, iksạmiksho, I have none, or there is none by me; chiksa^{n}peso, you have not seen of mine, or for me.

ak, sign of the first per. sing. of one of the forms of the imp. mood, as pisali, I see; akpisa, let me see.

ak, a particle of frequent occurrence in the Choctaw language. It is found, together with its compounds, in some form after nouns, pronouns, adjectives, verbs, adverbs. The sense of this particle varies according to the part of speech it succeeds. It is sometimes ak, then hak or yak (perhaps kak should be added, from k, definite, and ak). It follows verbs. It is used as an article and a relative pronoun. It is a word often used for designation or distinction, not only of a thing, i. e., a noun, but also of action and herein it differs from the English, except when we render the verb as a noun. In akoke, Matt. 2: 6, it is distinctive and marks one object from all others. It is usually rendered by the, that, one singling out from others; luak akkeyakma pilashpahe keyu, if it were not for the fire, etc. Compounds of ak are: aka^{n}, haka^{n}, maka^{n}—akano—akat, akạt, not used, akhet, being substituted—akatuka^{n}, the, Matt. 16: 12—akato, akạto—akchoba—akcho? 2 Sam. 24: 13; akbano and akbato, sign of optat. mood—akbano, adv., that only—akbat, adv., that only (t makes the word the subject of some verb) — akhe, akhi^{n}—akheno, in particular; especially that; and by way of disparagement—akhet, especially that one to his disadvantage—akheto, that in particular; contradistinctive, and disparaging (ạno akheto, how much less I, if you can not (bid at an auction))—aki^{n}, contracted from akinli—akilla kia, only the, Matt. 14: 36—akinli, adv., also; likewise; too (ak, that; inli, also); that again; i^{n} yakni akinli, Matt. 13: 57; lakọfi akinli, he is well, that again—akinli, pro., self; selves—akinlika, the same, Matt. 18: 1—akint, a contraction from akinlit—akkia (ak, that; kia, let it go), even; even as; so much as, Matt. 11: 23; even the, Matt. 12: 8; also the, Matt. 13: 26; 15: 16; 17: 12—akma, sign of the sub. mood. The first word is changed when the verb ends with i or o; see ikma and okma. The real particle is kma and kmạt—akmako — akmakocha — akmakoka — akmakoke—akmakona—akmakosh—akmakot—akmakhet (and -heto); see akhet, etc.—kmakhe (and -heno)—akmano—akmạt—akmạto—ako^{n}, the, it, Matt. 5: 24; 17: 4; i^{n}sinikakako^{n}, their synagogue, Matt. 12: 9; haiyu^{n}kpulo ako^{n}, the tares; a^{n}kanchak ako^{n}, my barn, Matt. 13: 30; ilap ako^{n}, him, Matt. 18: 6; chu^{n}kạsh ako^{n} aminti, Matt. 15: 18; ạno ako^{n}, me, Matt. 18: 5.—akocha.—akoka.—akokano; onush akokạno, Matt. 13: 30.—akoke; hatak ushi akoke, Matt. 13: 37; imạlla akoke, Matt. 13: 38; Setan akoke, enchil ạteha akoke, Matt. 13: 39.—akokạno.—akokạt.—akokạto.—akokia.—akona.—akosh, Matt. 17: 10; ushi akosh, who is the son, Matt. 11: 27.—akot.

[Mr. Byington says of the Choctaw months: "But very few Choctaws know all the names or know when the months come in or go out." At first he inserted a list of month names in alphabetical order without stating whether they were obtained from one person or from several. Later he obtained and recorded two others, one October 23, 1854, from Ilapintąbi, and the other December 31, 1856, from Iyapąli. Ilapintąbi told him that the year began in the latter part of September, while, according to Iyapąli, it was in the latter part of March. Both of these statements are reconciled by a subsequent note to the effect that the year was divided into two series of six months each, a summer series and a winter series. From the time when these are said to have begun, September 21 and March 21, it is evident that the autumnal and vernal equinoxes were taken as starting points. The list of months obtained from Iyapąli is in almost complete agreement with the earliest list recorded by Byington, and therefore is probably more correct than that of Ilapintąbi. It is as follows:

March–April,	chafo chito (from hohchafo chito, "big famine")
April–May,	hąsh koinchush.
May–June,	hąsh koichito.
June–July,	hąsh mali.
July–August,	hąsh watullak.
August–September,	tok inhąshi.
September–October,	hąsh bihi.
October–November,	hąsh bissa.
November–December,	hąsh kąf.
December–January,	hąsh takkon.
January–February,	hąsh hoponi.
February–March,	chąfiskono (from hohchafo iskitini, "little famine").

Besides some inconsequential differences the earliest list has hąsh watonlak instead of hąsh watullak. No May-June month occurs in this list unless it is represented by "luak mosholi," the specific application of which is not given, and which appears to have been questioned by Mr. Byington's later informants. Since, however, a year of twelve strictly lunar months must be corrected at intervals to agree with the solar year, the editor suggests that luak mosholi, which means "fire extinguished," may have applied to an intercalary month or period at the time of the annual festival when the year began anew. Ilapintąbi's list differs from that given only in inverting hąsh koiⁿchush and hąsh koichito, and hąsh mali and hąsh watullak, the first being made to fall in May–June, the second in April–May, the third in July–August, and the fourth in June–July.—J. ho, 2d per. pl. imp. mood, when the word begins with a consonant, and oh when with a vowel; hominti, come ye; ohia, go ye.

ho, oh, the "marriage pronoun," a syllable thrown into the verb, or placed at the beginning of a verb which indicates certain relations by marriage, such as son-in-law, daughter-in-law, or father-in-law and mother-in-law; used only by those who sustain this relation, and called "shame talk."

ho, an exclamation.

ho?, interrogative. See John 6: 29.

ho, ho^{n}, an art. used after a noun, usually rendered as a or an, the indefinite article; as nana ho pisali, I see a thing, or something. As the art. a^{n} is written a^{n}, ha^{n}, and ya^{n}, so this has three ways, o^{n}, ho^{n}, yo^{n}, and chiefly for the sake of euphony, yet hoⁿ usually follows a verb, yoⁿ a noun, and oⁿ a word which ends with a consonant, as wak oⁿ, hatak oⁿ. But the sense and the idiom of the Choctaw will not always admit of rendering hoⁿ, oⁿ, and yoⁿ by the article a or an; nor will that of the English admit it wherever the Choctaw language does. It is also a relative pronoun, simple and compound, when compounded having different senses and used after different parts of speech; ho, hoⁿ, hoh (see o, oⁿ, oh), have the sense of the verb to be in the 3d person, or of the auxiliary; also to do; hạchibaptismochilishke, I do indeed baptize you, Matt. 3: 11. Compounds: hocha—hoka, because, since, Matt. 5: 22—hokaka—hokakano—hokakaⁿt—hokakanto, Luke 1: 37; Chihowa hokakanto—hokakạt (I have heard this particle used)—hokakạto—hokakhe—hokakheno—hokakhet—hokakheto—hokakkia; mali, micha okhạta aiena hokakkia, even the winds and the sea, Matt. 8: 27—hokaⁿ—hokakocha—hokakona—hokakosh; ishpisa hokakosh, thou seest, Matt. 7: 3; chiahokakosh, thou art, John 3: 10; piⁿsa hokakosh, they seeing, Matt. 13: 13; hahaⁿklo hokakosh, hearing, Matt. 13: 13; hạshasha yokakosh, "ye dwell," Josh. 9: 22—hakakot—hokạmo (ho and kạma); mintilihokạmo,—hokạno (from ho and kạno); na holissochi ạtẹha hokạno, the scribes, Matt. 7: 29; itihhokạno, their mouth, Matt. 15: 8; keyu hokạno, which not, Matt. 15: 13; isht impa hokạno to eat with, Matt. 15: 20—hokạno, hokano, Josh. 1: 3, Matt. 16: 3; hahaⁿklo hokạno, by hearing, Matt. 13: 13; pihiⁿsa hokạno, seeing—hokạt, he who does, Matt. 5: 21—hokạto, Matt. 5: 19, the one who does (distinctive by way of comparison), Matt. 5: 19; imachi hokạto, Matt. 5: 22; atampa hokạto, Matt. 5: 37, ishanumpulachiⁿhokạto, Matt. 6: 6; ạni keyu hokạto, that bringeth not forth fruit, Matt. 7: 19; they that, Matt. 11: 8; chuⁿkash okạto, their heart, Matt. 15: 8; bạnna hokạto, Matt. 16: 25; ạbit iktalo hokạto, Josh. 8: 26; hoke, final word; lauahoke, are many, Matt. 7: 13; ahauchihoke, do find Matt. 7: 14; isht imaholitopahoke, Matt. 11: 19, alhpesahoke it is lawful, Matt. 12: 12; saiyukpa jehnahoke, Matt. 17: 5—hokia—hokoⁿ, the, Matt. 17: 2—hona—hosh—hot.

huⁿwa, v. t., to scent; to smell; to snuff.

i has the sound of e in me or i in pique and of short i in pin. The letter i is used for y in words where y is doubled in sound. The letter a often precedes i, thus making a diphthong Thus yukpa, yukpạchi, aiyukpa, aiyukpạchi, and not ayyukpa, ayyukpạchi. The consonant is doubled to express intensity.

i, prep., meaning at, in, place where, as iiksho. iiksho belongs to the intensive form, but i occurs before other words, ichapaka, imoma, itikba.

i, adv., there, used as above. It rarely occurs except before the word iksho and has the same use as a and ai before verbs. [Mr. Byington says, however, in a note: "This needs correction."] iⁿ, pre. poss. pro. in the nom. case, 3d per., prefixed to nouns that do not begin with a vowel or with p, ch, l, or t. The noun is often in the poss. case, as miko iⁿholisso, the king's book. It may be in the nom. or obj. case, but the pronoun in Choctaw should be parsed as aⁿ, chiⁿ, iⁿ, piⁿ; aⁿholisso, my book; iⁿhaiaka, visible to him; Matt. 1: 20. See im and in.

iⁿ, pre. per. pro. in the dative case before verbs and usually translated with a prep., s, of him, for him, etc.

iⁿ, his, their, 3d per. sing. and pl., removed from the noun in the nom. and placed before the verb, as tạli holisso iⁿhotina, he has counted his money, etc., or he has counted the money for him. See chiⁿ, hạchiⁿ, hạpiⁿ.

iⁿ, of it; from it, etc. There are a few instances in which iⁿ, in, etc., seem to have the use of a prep. rather than a pronoun. These have the neuter gender. See Gen. 2: 17, ishpakmạt iⁿnitak mihinli ho chillahioke; iⁿfalạmmi, to the north of it, north of it; iⁿhopaki, far from it; iⁿmisha, two days from it (every other day, iⁿmishakma).

iⁿ, contraction for inli, or in; makiⁿ, akiⁿ (for akinli).

iⁿ, iⁿh, adv., yes.

n, contracted from na, not, must not and made the final letter of verbs when it occurs, as ạpalin, ạpali na, I may not eat; ishpan, ishpa na, thou must not eat.

na, adv., not; must not; do not let (this form is aspirated, nạh being verbal); ishpa na, ishia na; akpoki na, chik aiyuki na, chinukshopa na, Luke 1: 30; yoba na, do not possibly; lest possibly; chifạmmi na, do not let him whip you.

na, may; can; ạla yoba na, perhaps he may come.

na, a particle; classed with conjunctions in its use in the second and third persons; in the first singular, objective case, it is simply a nasal, thus pisaliⁿ; onaliⁿ, cf. 1 Kings 9: 3; aiolabbit ishi na ikano, Matt. 7, 5; 13: 22.

na, by means of; because; that; so that; to the end that, 2 Sam. 24: 2; iskali ishi hassamala na pisalashke, Mark 12: 15; here the object is expressed by na, so that; sinti at kopoli na illetok, because the serpents bit them they died; ant amanoli na akostininchiletak, oka yaⁿ hachiⁿshileli naⁿ hashaⁿyatok, Josh. 2: 10; here the result in the mind of Rahab is expressed, but in the mind of Moses the object of God in drying up the waters would be expressed by na; yohmi na, when, Matt. 3: 16, see Matt. 4: 12, where na and mat both are used.

na, till, Matt. 2: 15; long; chihaksi na, 1 Sam. 1: 14; na used before "time how long," Acts 19: 8, 10, 22; time future, anta na shohbi, to stay till night; ihiⁿshi na, Matt. 11: 12; anta na bilia, to remain forever; anta na himaka, to stay till this time; time past up to the present, iⁿhullo na bilia hatukosh, 1 Kings 10: 9.

na, nah, adv., and; and then; that, Matt. 2: 8; ont kehopesa na, let us go and see it and then, etc. (we shall know); ont kehopesa na ia; hot akla na, let me look for and come then. The verb next after na has a different nom. from the one before it. When both verbs have the same nom. cha is used, as ant impa cha, come and eat and (go to work—as the case may be); ant issa cha, quit and (do not trouble me again), etc.; ima na, Matt. 15: 36; used in the oblique case, Josh. 7: 21; iyiⁿkalaha ombinili na tabokolimat illitok, 2 Kings 4: 20; mahyah nah, scolding a dog a second time; i. e., again, over again; kehotisheli nah, let us now disperse, having been together a while.

na, n., a thing; an actor; an agent; an article, John 4: 38[?]; contracted from nana; before b, m, and p, usually written nam; before the vowels and ch, l, and t written naⁿ, for euphony's sake; it is prefixed to verbs to form a noun; name of an agent or thing; nanokpani, a criminal; nan okpulo, a vile thing.

t, sign of the nom. case or the art. the, placed at the end of nouns and adjectives. It has a definitive sense, as in ilạppa, ilạppạt, yạmma, yạmmat; in verbs, toksạlit ia, for work he goes; t defines or marks out to work as an object, like to in English.

t, a conjunctive form of the article. It connects two verbs when both have the same nom., or where there is but one nom., as chumpạt ia, ạbit ạpa, making a compound verb. The letter t suffixed to the particles a, ha, ya, ka, ma, gives them a connecting power, and toka and oma, a definite sense.

t, when suffixed to a verb or adj. often gives it the force of an adverb, as achukmat a^{n}sha, he sits well; he is well; achukmat is a word that qualifies a^{n}sha. t has a definite as well as a connecting office, namely that of singling out and connecting two nominatives to different verbs. But see above.

ta, adv. of time, doubt, and surprise, as ish lạt ta? have you been here some time, and I did not know it (recent past tense)? The word to which this is suffixed takes a t, as ishla? ishlạtta. I think that ta is definite and to distinctive. ishlạtbatta? def., ishlạtto? dist.
